JUDICIAL WISDOM

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES is preparing for his transcontinental trip with all the deliberateness of a well trained mind centered on the work of presenting the real issues of the campaign. That the foreign situation and international complications will receive close attention is past saying, as it is evident that the Republican candidate is securing data from first hands that will throw light on the real issues before the country and expose the policy of suppression that has been pursued by Washington. That one-half the truth has not been told about Mexico is almost certain and that much of what has been vouchsafed has been given out in garbled form for the purpose of shielding the White House from undue criticism. The list of visitors enjoying protracted conferences with the next president includes the names of some of the best informed men on the border who have not succeeded in arresting the attention of the administration or inducing Wilson to manifest some manhood in treating with the political ulceration. These men are not in touch or sympathy with the prevailing system of treatment and are urgent in demanding some form of redress for the actual grievances of American citizens in particular and humanity in general that will amount to something more than a temporary poultice.

STORY OF THE WAR

IN this issue the Bonanza prints a synopsis of a review of hostilities on French soil since the declaration of war August 4, 1914. The story is written by one of the most reliable agents of the Associated Press, whose treatment of the subject is from the unbiased standing of that organization. The past and present are thoroughly canvassed and the inside and exterior of planning and scheming for the past two years revealed to the gaze of the public. The article contains some illuminating points tending to show an accord on the part of the allies in conducting operations during two years of sanguinary experience. For the first time it is admitted that Great Britain, Italy, France and Russia have been sedulously working to one end and that the endurance contest nearing a close, as forecasted by one of the best known French military writers, has been deliberately prolonged for the purpose of adding to the equipment and perfecting transportation and munition manufactures of the entente powers. There is no longer any doubt that the allies were playing for time in order to prepare themselves for taking the offensive in most formidable style. The truth about Russia is told in plain language to the effect that the troops from the north were not half equipped when they invaded Galicia and overran Silesia. Millions of men were in the field, but not fifty per cent of them were armed with anything better than clubs to resist her perfectly equipped troops of the kaiser comprising the flower of the German army. The French general compliments the Grand Duke Nicholas for his masterly retreat to the gates of Warsaw and adverts to the reappearance of the czar's uncle on the Caucasus with a perfectly drilled and accoutered force that is now sweeping over the country whence they had been driven by the reverses of two years ago. The siege of Verdun calls for the explanation that the allies have been more amazed than frightened by the continuous assault that has yielded nothing more substantial than to furnish occupation to the Germans which precluded sending assistance to the hard pressed forces of Von Linsingen on the eastern front where they might have been successful in checking the victorious onrush of the Slavic hordes.

The attitude of Italy in the campaign is also explained and the sudden entry of that financially embarrassed nation in the arena of war is disclosed. The declaration of war against Austria was designed to furnish a diversion to distract the Austrian forces and compel that nation to call off entire divisions from the eastern front notwithstanding Russia had given intimations of descending on that quarter. The statements conclude with the suggestion that the end of hostilities cannot be far off as German is backed against the walls that are closing in threatening her with extinction.

GOOD ROADS IN FORESTS

ONE of the provisions of the federal aid road bill, signed by the president on July 11, appropriates $10,000,000, to be spent by the secretary of agriculture, in ten yearly installments of $1,000,000 each, for the construction and maintenance of roads and trails within, or partly within, the national forests.

The bill provides that, upon request of the proper officers of the states or counties, the money shall be used for building roads and trails which are necessary for the use and development of resources upon which communities within or near the national forests are dependent. The work is to be done in co-operation with the various states and counties. Not more than ten per cent of the value of the timber and forage resources of the national forests within the respective county or counties in which the roads or trails will be constructed may be spent. Provision is made for the return of the money to the treasury by applying ten per cent of the annual receipts of the national forests in the state or county until the amount advanced is covered.

This bill makes possible the construction of many roads which are urgently needed. Since 1912 ten per cent of the receipts of the national forests have been used in road and trail building, but the funds have been inadequate to meet the needs. Many isolated communities within the national forests are entirely dependent upon the government roads and trails. In some instances these settlements are almost entirely without means of communication. According to Forest service officials the money now made available will permit the construction of many roads necessary to open up

ITALY'S ENTRANCE WAS MASTER STROKE

SAVED RUSSIA FROM CRUSHING DEFEAT BY ENGAGING AUSTRIA

(By Associated Press.)

ROME, July 29.—Complying with a request from the Associated Press, the Italian authorities have prepared a statement reviewing the past year of war from the Italian viewpoint. Although the anniversaries that are marked by the early days of August close the second year of the war for Germany, Austria-Hungary, Russia, France and Great Britain, Italy has only a little more than passed the first anniversary of her participation in the conflict, which began May 23, 1915. But in the view of the Italian authorities, Italy's alignment with the entente powers has been no small factor in checking the success of the central powers.

In the statement officially prepared for the Associated Press, great praise is bestowed on Gen. Cadorna, the Italian chief of staff, as "a powerful organizer and cautious strategist," who is declared to have conducted his campaign against Austria with a view to rendering the greatest possible aid to the entente allies. It is asserted that the early reverses of the Russians might have run into complete disaster if Italy had not just at the time of the Russian retreat entered the conflict and forced Austria to employ a vast number of her troops on the southern boundaries. Further, the offensives which the Italians have launched from time to time rendered it impossible for Austria to carry out her purpose of sending troops and artillery either to the aid of the German crown prince for the attack on Verdun or to fight the Russians.

It looks as if the crown prince is proceeding on the theory he may get the grand bounce in Germany.—Dallas News.

HIGH COST OF LIVING SOLVED IN PETROGRAD

DUMA AUTHORIZES OPENING OF SHOPS FOR RETAILING FOODS

(By Associated Press.)

PETROGRAD, July 29.—A society combatting the high cost of living has opened a number of shops for the sale of provisions to working population on the closest possible margin. Eleven of these shops have already been established. They are located in the vicinity of factories which are working for the national defense. It is proposed to open a total of thirty such shops in the near future.

A plan is being studied by the city duma contemplating the establishment of municipal dining rooms in convenient places throughout the residence districts.

CURE FOR INSOMNIA IS LATEST CLAIM

VIENNA PHYSICIAN BELIEVES HE HAS FOUND AN ANTIDOTE FOR TROUBLE

(By Associated Press.)

VIENNA, July 29.—A well known Austrian physician, Dr. Ebstein, has discovered a physical exercise that will cure insomnia, he claims. As explained in the "Physical and Diet Therapeutics Journal," the cure consists of the simple process of grasping with both hands the head board or rail of the bed and of straining upwards until the arm and shoulder muscles are fatigued.

Sleeplessness in most cases is caused by irregular blood circulation in the brain, Dr. Ebstein explains. This comes to pass because of the slight difference in altitude between the head and the heart when one is lying down. By raising the arms and straining upward, the physician says, the flow of blood to the head is increased, while at the same time a certain degree of fatigue aids in getting to sleep.

MOTORED TO GOLDFIELD

A party of young people motored to Goldfield last night and from there went to Alkali for a swim. A jolly time was the report, as it is always great fun to cook coffee and "weanies" out on the great wide desert. The girls took a delicious supper along and the young men, as usual, did justice to the repast.

Composing the party were Misses Gertrude Ripplingham, Freda Daust, Lena Bohn, Gertrude Tailleux, Fannie Holmes and Helmer Neilson, Lavy Davis, Scott Mullen, Arbin Neilson and J. Worley.
